Doris Greene likes the Housing program and the credit bureau information. It "puts how to write it down." That can be good for people who did not go far in school. There are forms to fill in. The book tells how to talk to credit bureaus and how to give information to credit bureaus. (Resident of Halifax, VA) Telephone interview 02/16/07

Pam Smith, Program Director who also does Grant Writing, Program Funding and Planning Programs at the Hope House in Fredericksburg, Virginia

Hope House is a non-profit organization that is a homeless shelter for mothers and their children. If you can, please donate to them. They have recently had a funding cut. Entire families are homeless with long waiting lists to get into the Hope House.

"Glancing at the book, it gives you the forms, the addresses that people can actually use." This is helpful when dealing with clients (paraphrase)

"Clients don't know what to say. But many times, with state-run institutions, they don't give you any more than what you ask for."

"The law says when they are a homeless child...they can stay in their SAME school system. Schools have to provide transportation for that child. This book tells them what to say! Average Joe doesn't know this!"

... Is encouragement. This is good material for people who are not very educated. How to access information.

Ms. Smith's experience has been, people will say, "This conversation didn't happen. But go to such and such and ask for such and such specific words."

Everybody is NOT in a shelter, but are still in a crisis. [This] gives them financial management...how to negotiate life.

Assessment from an anonymous source February 2009:

Many people could have avoided getting into deep trouble, including incarceration, by following the pages in one of the books. No one teaches you this stuff.

An x-offender told me in October 2009, that he was about to do a crime to make money for him and his family because so many legal money-making opportunity doors have been slammed in his face. He reported that he is so angry and that he had later confessed to a crime he had not committed because of his prior record and "pressure". He did not have his own lawyer. He knew it was not by coincidence that we had met and I just started telling him, as a total stranger, about my books that help everyone including x-offenders. He was emotionally moved with joy.

Credit Score Increasing and Debt Reduction Strategies & SECRETS: FOR the Rich, POOR, Middle Class, Disabled, X-Offender & Laid-Off by Sheri Fortune

These book reviews say it all...

Extensive Book review from Pastor John Reid, New Generation Outreach

Legal/Credit Score/Debt Book
02/13/2009

"I am the pastor of New Generation Church which ministers to a racially mixed congregation of financially poor, and intermittently homeless, or habitually homeless persons with limited education. Some in the congregation have substance abuse and/or mental health problems. Some have criminal records.

I have reviewed the following documents entitled Legal Book and Credit Score Increasing and Debt Reduction Book" prepared by Mrs. Sheri Fortune to assist the poor to obtain legal help; and credit score help and help getting certain available benefits. The following comments are provided as a review of these books.

The Legal Book

The Legal Book contains helpful information on Pre-paid Legal membership, attorney consultations, identity theft protection and other means for the disenfranchised poor to obtain legal help. The Legal Book provides very helpful information such as names, phone numbers, email addresses for people to obtain legal assistance.

The Credit Score Increasing/ Debt Reduction Book

The Credit Score Increasing/ Debt Reduction Book contains helpful information explaining how to easily obtain credit score and how to negotiate and frame debt payment to increase credit score. The Book is a short course which teaches users how [to] determine and improve their credit score and how to reduce debt by informed negotiation with creditors; and, by developing a basic understanding of debtors rights and creditors' responsibilities. The book summarizes methods the poor can use to:

- determine how to talk to credit bureau companies
- determine if they have been a victim of identity theft
- determine how to have negative and/or incorrect information removed from their credit report
- determine how to handle disputes with credit bureau
- contact the customer protection agency

The Credit/Debt Book provides very helpful step-by-step procedures to communicate with creditors and/credit bureaus. The Book enables readers to understand and make use of their legal rights under the law in dealing with creditors.

Simple and useful forms are provided in the Index of the Credit/Debt Book for users to prepare written notices to Landlords, creditors, and credit bureaus.

The information provided in these books are practical, useful and a necessary tool for persons concerned about debt, creditors, legal help and improving their financial future.

Sincerely,

John H. Reid

Telephone interview with Pat Mescus-09/12/2009. She has the Credit Score Increasing and Debt Reduction 4-book series.

"The book is filled with a lot of information and is very resourceful. I liked the form and layout of the book."

"It would appeal to people who have CHALLENGED CREDIT and people trying to rebuild or restore credit. It has global appeal---no matter what your income is. It is just the process."

It "also hit on coming back into the workplace, RE-ENTERING THE WORKPLACE, LOSS OF JOB, *LEGAL [Rights Most People Don't Know That They ALREADY Have], HOW TO PURSUE CORRECTING A LEGAL SITUATION."

*Mrs. Fortune is NOT a lawyer, but has rights listed in the Legal book which is a part of this series. Most people don't know that they ALREADY have these rights due to working too much and not having time to check into things. She consulted a lawyer via telephone prior to putting this into print.

VARIOUS Legal Situations are covered. Some more severe than others.

Telephone interview with Carlton Adams 10/31/2009. He has the Credit Score Increasing and Debt Reduction 4-book series.

"The tips---some of the tips you have are really invaluable SECRETS.

I don't know how someone could get the except from someone like yourself who has experienced it."

"Everything you had there for the finances would help people. All that you have written will help people."

Mrs. Lorraine Haggerty Fredericksburg, Virginia 02/2009

"I enjoyed the part about where you put your money in the bank/credit union---if you owe bills (collections) be careful with direct deposit [of paycheck]."
